Hear from three lawyers who are striving to make the world a better place. Learn about their career paths and what they are doing now.

Mary Lynch, Esq.
Professor, Albany Law School

Mary Lynch specializes in violence-against-women issues, criminal procedure, and clinical education. She is the director of the Center for Excellence in Law

Teaching (CELT), director of Albany Law's Domestic Violence Prosecution Hybrid Clinic, editor and frequent contributor to the award-winning Best Practices for Legal Education blog. She is the immediate past co-president of the Clinical Legal Education Association.

Stefen Short, Esq.
Staff Attorney, Disability Rights New York

Short joined Disability Rights NY in 2013 and currently is a staff attorney in its free-of-charge Protection and Advocacy for Individuals with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities Program. He advocates for the rights of eligible clients with disabilities and has led reform projects. He investigates allegations of noncompliance with use-of-force policies and denial of special education supports in NY state prisons, juvenile justice facilities, and NYC jails.

Gracja Nowak, Esq.
Katheryn D. Katz Graduate Fellow, The Legal Project

Nowak joined The Legal Project, a not-for-profit organization that provides free and low-cost legal services to underserved individuals in the Capital District, following graduation from Albany Law School in 2013. She represents low-income victims of domestic violence in various matrimonial and family law cases, including divorce, child custody, and support proceedings. Nowak was a certified law intern with the Family Violence Litigation Clinic, Domestic Violence Prosecution Hybrid Clinic and Immigration Project, and served as co-president of the law school's pro bono program.
