

ALBANY LAW SCHOOL

Critical Race Theory Concentration

A student may elect the CRT concentration after completing two semesters of study. The student may do so by completing the concentration-election form and filing it with the Registrar's Office. Each student must designate as their concentration advisor either Professor Farley, Professor Dodds, or Professor Farnia.

Core CRT Faculty and Concentration Advisors:

Professor Ciji Dodds, Professor Anthony Farley and Professor Nina Farnia

Requirements:

Course Requirements

Students must complete a minimum of 12 credits from the following courses:

Required courses:

- Critical Race Theory (Prof. Farley) or
- CRT: Modern Debates (Prof. Farnia)

Elective courses:

- The New Jim Crow (Prof. Farley)
- Race, Rape Culture and the Law (Prof. Dodds)
- Critical Legal History (Prof. Farnia)
- Employment Law (Prof. Farnia)
- Criminal Procedure (Prof. Dodds or Prof. Farley)

Additional courses by be approved by the Core CRT Faculty and Concentration Advisors

Writing Requirement

Students are required to complete one significant piece of writing of publishable quality written under the supervision of core CRT Faculty/Concentration Faculty Advisors: Professor Ciji Dodds, Professor Nina Farnia, or Professor Anthony Farley. The writing requirement does not require that students earn any credits beyond the required and elective credits described above. The topic and the arrangement for fulfilling the writing requirement, however, must be approved in advance by one of the CRT Concentration Advisors (Professor Ciji Dodds, Professor Nina Farnia or Professor Anthony Farley). The paper could be written to fulfill the requirements of a course, an independent study, or a law journal note and comment. It could also be fulfilled by writing a paper independently, such as a submission to a writing competition or an article for publication. In all of these arrangements, the prior approval of the Concentration Advisor is required.
